Sakuru

Desking

A 'platform' that can support individual, group, linear, radiating, meeting and collaborative work-styles and the ability to change from one to the other. Over many life spans this platform continues its purpose and use - allowing change to happen with little waste of material or need for extra components no matter if businesses change in work style, population age and knowledge, from transitional to active working.

Means circle in Japanese, is represented more than in form, but on the relationship of Sakuru's never ending workpoint design. It also reflects the environmental message of being used endlessly in different forms with colour skins and jackets, the possibilities changes it's persona - elongating it's life span.

Haworth through CoCreate in collaboration with designer Gavin Harris developed Sakuru through years of research and development in Australia.

Technology in Business

Sakuru, a comprehensive collaborative platform, allows businesses to cater to single team work or multiple teams working side by side allowing presentation space to be created when needed.

120 Degree Workpoints

120 degree work-settings promotes more than one-on-one team connections. It also maintains the individual control to ones personal work settings. Articulated by curved fabric screens offer another level of privacy, at desk or at bench height.

Linear Workpoints

Individual work points with their own control or when desired group override control can lift entire setting to working bench height.

Agency Studio

Working with linear workpoints, with individual height adjustments allows for total flexibility and control for the user. Division screens can be mounted on the desk or through the central structure for further flexibility with lay over accessories like whiteboards, pinboards and more.

Elements

Created using a minimal number of elements - bollard, service rail, work tops and screen - Sakuru is a study ridged form - with height variance from 620 to 1200mm

Clear under desk zone provides a no barrier workpoint for a single or multiple user. The service rail allows for simple cable installation either first install but also for day 2 installations. With integral levelling feet Sakuru is able to accommodate all floor situations.

Intelligence

Integrations of services to Sakuru surface tabletops is simple and flexible due to the no under frame design. Integrating charging, USB and power services have been designed into Sakuru's DNA.

Controls of the actuators allows single control to each work top but also allow synchronous gang control for team meetings or workshops.

Jackets + Skins

The design allows for jackets to be fitted to the bollards - in leather, fabric and vinyl. This makes Sakuru's lifespan stay longer in the supply chain through prolonged usage making it better for our environment.

This makes Sakuru adapt to endless visual inspiration for team or executive areas. Vinyl skins using automotive technology can completely change the colour of the bollard allowing second generation use or simply a change in colour to adapt to a new fitout.

Meeting

Sakuru has two bollard sizes allowing for flexible solutions. The smaller bollard can be paired with a 1200mm diameter table to create a flexible meeting table.

People like to meet in different ways - this table can be lifted to standing height providing the user ultimate control of how they meet.

Collaboration Table

Independent tops with height adjust controls allowing for multiply users to conform their way. Height controls can also be group controlled creating a platform to present from to a working group.

While end work tops can either be a meeting point or used for storage - suspended from the central bollard. Generous curved fabric division screen provide privacy.
